Baby Marie, the nine-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. William Diehl of No. 205 West Eighteenth sereet, who was abducted from her home yesterday, is back again in her mother's arms, apparently no worse for her strange experience.

Mrs. O'Kane when arraigned in Jefferson Market Court to-day, explained that she had left Mrs. Diehl's house yesterday afternoon to buy some crackers and cheese and while out became

She had a creme de menthe, some otner canks and her mind became a little bit hazy. At this stage of the proceeding The lost her pocketbook, containing her Fing, money and the address of Mrs. Diehl's house and there was nothing-for her to do but wander around trying to find the house.

After hearing the explanation Magistrate Mayo discharged her and told her to go home.

Policeman William Nevins, of the West Twentieth street station, saw the woman and the child at Twenty-fourth street and Eighth avenue at 5.30 o'clock this morning. They were going west on Twenty-fourth street, the woman carrying the child, and the baby laughing and "Where are you going?" asked the

"Where are you going," asked the policeman.
"I don't know," replied the woman.
"What is your name and where did you get the child?"
"I don't know."
The policeman took her to the station.
There Sergt. Devery closely interrogated her, but failed to get any definite statement.

Free Physicians of the in the Tenements.

The chief of the corps of Sick Bables Fund physicians reports the following during the past week:

Houses visited 336 Families visited......4,726 Sick babies treated 519

These figures show that the Fund physicians did not begin their summer street, Manhattan, says that family campaign any too early. They show trouble may have caused his son's that there is still urgent need of this disappearance. The young man lived of New York. Over 500 alling little ones were found by the physicians in their daily house-to-house canvas of the tenedally house-to-house canvas of the tenesort of charity among the poor people ment districts, and in each case free medicines were given and the mothers were instructed in the proper treatment and care of their infants.

"As I entered the dark and dingy hallway of a rookery on Division street," one Fund physician reports, "I heard a child coughing severely. Going up a flight of stairs, I traced the cough to a flight of stairs, I traced the cough to a flight of stairs, I traced the cough to a flight of stairs, I traced the cough to a flight of stairs, I traced the cough to a flight of stairs, I traced the cough to a flight of stairs, I traced the cough to a flight of stairs, I traced the cough to a flight of stairs, I traced the cough to a flight of stairs, I traced the cough to a flight of stairs, I traced the cough to a flight of stairs, I traced the cough to a flight of the bank at the usual hour and in his usual health and good spirits.

Becoming greatly worried about him when he did not return Monday evening, his father made inquiries, Mrs. Graves, ir., says, of the watchman at the bank building and was told that the last the watchman had seen of his was Sunday aternoon at his desk in the bank.

Mrs. Graves said between sobs to day that the watchman told her father in-law that her husband had worked plat his desk all day Sunday, and at 4.30 o'clack hal left, saying he was going the first one flowers. ment and care of their infants.

the Sick Babies Fund and The Evening World.

"A young Hebrew mother begged me to give her some medicine to make her babby sleep at night," reports another physician.

"Inquiring about the case I learned that the baby was just recovering from a long slege of pneumonia, which had naturally left the little patient in a feeble condition. To make matters worse the mother, through inexperience, had fallen into the habit of nursing the ham to create had brought on severe indiges ito, with almost continual colic. I pointed out to the mother how she harmed the baby by too frequent nursing, and assured her that sleeping medicine would nurse the child not oftener than once in two hours during the day and only once or twice during the night, with a drink of water when necessary between times. his followed my advice and on my next visit reported great improvement."

These two reports selected from many explain the simple but effective way in which the work of the Evening Warld.

His wife and parents are unable to account for his disappearance. His home life was happy, and he had no bad habits. He did not, his wife says, drink or gamble, and spent all his time away from the bank at home or with his parents.

Accounts All Straight.

t the Bank of New York, Supt. Hunt the Foreign Exchange Department said:

"Young Graves worked in my department and was well liked. He had been here five years, and was a model man. His accounts were absolutely straight, and not a word was ever said against him. He seemed to be happy and concented, and I cannot account for his mysterious disappearance. I would like to have him back here, now. He frequently worked a few hours on Sunday, as he did last Sunday afternoon."

terious disappearance. I would like to have him back here, now. He frequently worked a few hours on Sunday, as he did last Sunday afternoon."

May Be Family Trouble.

R. H. Graves, the father of the young man, said to-day that if there was any reason for his son's going away it might be because of some unpleasantness in his family.

"I had not seen him in some time." he added, "for when he was married he went to housekeeping for himself. I learned on Sunday that he was missing, but when I asked his wife if there had been any domestic trouble, she assured me that there was not. I am anchined, however, to think that there might have been something wrong, the importance of which she underestimates.

"My son was always well be aveled and soher. So far as I know he did not drink anything. So far as the report that he might have jumped the Brooklyn Bridge goes, I think there is hardly anything in that. I expect him to turn up in a few days."
